Of Certain Novelties

The new goods are coming faster than can be mentioned, many that deserve a prominent place here are crowded out and have to go unheralded and unsung. We would call your particular attention to our Wall Paper stock this season. It is a superb line, exclusive patterns, original ideas, the designers are creators of styles, not followers. Now, striking, tasteful, and prices that are below that demanded for inferior goods. Just look over the line, or such parts of it as will interest you and we are sure you will agree with us as to its merits:

At 5c
we show 50 patterns that need but to be seen to insure to us a sale. All shades, all designs to suit any room from the attic to the cellar.

At 7 1/2c
Catchy, Freney, florals and stripes in the new tones of green, red and blue.

At 10c
A few special strips in silk effects, with and without frieze, with mouldings to match. They hang as beautifully as a real silk fabric.

At 12 1/2c
New colors in ingrains, with large floral borders and ceilings.

At 15c
The most exquisite line of English Chintz and floral designs. A remnant lot of Room Moldings at 2c per foot to close out pattern. Bring measure of room and get a chance at these; they will only last a few days.

GOSSIPY PARAGRAPHS.

Theatrical And Otherwise—Remarks In The Fever.

"MY FRIEND FROM INDIA."

The story of "My Friend from India," which will be seen at the Grand Opera House on April 20th, besides being uproariously funny has a thread of satire that is pleasing to the despiser of shams. The satire deals with the craze of the "new rich" for society fads, the theosophical fad especially. Erastus Underholt, a rich Kansas City pork packer, retires and goes to New York, and for his children's sake tries to break into the sacred circle of swelldom. He thinks, by posing as a patron of theosophy, he can succeed. His son goes on spree and brings an intoxicated barber home with him, and, to escape his father's wrath, he palms his companion off as "My Friend from India," a member of the Order of the Yellow Robe. The complications arising from the desire of the barber to escape, and the obstacles that beset him, form a basis for some of the funniest situations ever devised by writers to those farcical. The fun that these same situations engender is pure, clean and refreshing. "My Friend from India" is one of the few good comedies now on tour.

Eczema All Her Life.

Mr. E. D. Jenkins, of Lithonia, Ga., says that his daughter, Ida, inherited a severe case of Eczema, which the usual mercury and potash remedies failed to relieve. Year by year she was treated with various medicines, external applications and internal remedies, without result. Her sufferings were intense, and her condition grew steadily worse. All the so-called blood remedies did not seem to reach the disease at all until S. S. S. was given, when an improvement was at once noticed. The medicine was continued with favorable results, and now she is cured sound and well, her skin is perfectly clear and pure and she has been saved from what threatened to blight her life forever.

S.S.S. (guaranteed purely vegetable) cures Eczema, Scrofula, Cancer, Rheumatism, or any other blood trouble. It is a real blood remedy and always cures even after all else fails.

Take a blood remedy for a blood disease; a tonic won't cure it.

FOREIGN POWERS

Seek to Avert a War Between Spain and the United States.

McKinley Says He Hopes the Outcome of the Cuban Situation May Be the Maintenance of Peace—Similar Call on Spain.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—The representatives of the six powers of Europe seeking to avert war between Spain and the United States, called on President McKinley at noon Thursday. The governments of Great Britain, France, Germany, Austria, Russia, and Italy were represented. Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British ambassador, was the first to arrive followed by Ambassador Von Hollenben, of Germany. Within a few minutes all the ambassadors had been ushered into the blue room and President McKinley immediately left his office and went down to meet them.

The call of the representatives of the powers on the president was quite brief, and at 12:20 o'clock they went over to the state department and made an official visit. They were headed by Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British ambassador and dean of the corps. The others included the French and German ambassadors, the Austrian minister and the charge d'affaires of Italy and Russia. The entire official suite of attaches accompanied. The call evidently was by appointment, for they were at once shown into the diplomatic room of the state department, where they were joined by Secretary Sherman and Assistant Secretary Day, with whom they were closeted behind closed doors.

Sir Julian Pauncefote as representative of the powers presented the following:

"The undersigned representatives of Germany, Austria-Hungary, France, Great Britain, Italy and Russia, duly authorized in that behalf, address in the name of their respective governments, a pressing appeal to the feelings of humanity and moderation of the president and of the American people in their existing differences with Spain. They earnestly hope that further negotiations will lead to an agreement which, while securing the maintenance of peace, will afford all necessary guarantees for the reestablishment of order in Cuba."

"The powers do not doubt that the humanitarian and purely disinterested character of this representation will be fully recognized and appreciated by the American nation."

President McKinley replied as follows:

"The government of the United States recognizes the good will which has prompted the friendly communication of the representatives of Germany, Austria-Hungary, France, Great Britain, Italy and Russia, as set forth in the address of your excellencies, and shares the hope therein expressed that the outcome of the situation in Cuba may be the maintenance of peace between the United States and Spain by affording the necessary guarantees for the re-establishment of order in the island, so terminating the chronic condition of disturbance there which so deeply injures the interests and menaces the tranquility of the American nation by the character and consequences of the struggle thus kept up at our doors, besides shocking its sentiment of humanity."

"The government of the United States appreciates the humanitarian and disinterested character of the communication now made on behalf of the powers named, and for its part is confident that equal appreciation will be shown for its own earnest and insincere endeavors to fulfill a duty to humanity by ending a situation the indefinite prolongation of which has been insufferable."

The visit was in accordance with an agreement of an exactly similar visit to the queen regent at Madrid Thursday, its purpose being to present salutations, timely with the Easter season, and to present the wishes of their sovereigns that peace would be maintained.

The action of the powers in presenting the joint note to President McKinley was to have occurred Wednesday, but was deferred by delay at St. Petersburg. It was not until 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon that the Russian government cabled its charge instructions similar to those already given to the other representatives. At 7 o'clock Wednesday night a meeting was held and the joint note formally signed, it having been prepared at the meeting at the British embassy the night before. The note is in French and bears the signatures of the representatives of the six powers. The original note in French was presented, and in doing so Sir Julian Pauncefote stated to the president that it was given to him in this language, as French is the diplomatic language of the world. An English translation not bearing the signatures accompanied the original note, and it was this English translation which Sir Julian Pauncefote read. The president's answer was not reduced to French.

Uprising in Porto Rico.

NEW YORK, April 8.—The Quebec line steamer Fontebelle, from St. Thomas, brings news that an uprising has taken place in Porto Rico and that in an engagement between the insurgents and Spanish troops a score of men were killed. Two filibustering expeditions landed in Porto Rico a month ago, and this fact gives color to the rumor of an insurrection.

Ten-Inch Rifles at Ballast Point.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., April 8.—Gen. Shafter, who is now inspecting the fortifications of this port, states that the first of the ten-inch rifles will be in place at Ballast Point by Thursday night. He is pleased with the rapid progress on the harbor defenses here.

McKinley's Course Comended.

CLEVELAND, O., April 8.—The chamber of commerce Thursday afternoon adopted unanimously the following resolution: "Resolved, that we heartily commend the prudent and conservative course of the president in dealing with the Cuban question."

IN A SNOW SLIDE.

Between Fifty and One Hundred Persons Met Death in a Horrible Manner on the Chilkoot Trail—Large Number of People Were Drowned.

SKAGWAY, Alaska, April 8, via Seattle, April 9.—About noon Friday, on the Chilkoot trail, between the Scales and Stone house, at least 31 men met death and a large number of others were injured more or less seriously in a snow slide.

The dead were crushed under an avalanche of snow and ice, which came down from the mountain side upon the left hand side of the trail at midway between the Scales and Stone house.

At this writing the known dead are: Gus, Sebarth; Seattle; Frank Sprague, Seattle; Steve Stevenson, Seattle; Tom Collins, Portland, Ore.; C. P. Harrison, Seattle; W. L. Riley, Seattle; one woman, name unknown; Ed. Atwood, New York; C. Beck, Sanford, Fla.; L. Widelein, Kansas City, Mo.; Mrs. Ryan, Baltimore; John Morgan, Emporia, Kan.; — Grimes, Sacramento, Cal., who has a brother in business at Dyea.

Two of the seriously injured are Waiter Chappay, of New York, and John C. Murphy, of Dixon, Dak.

Fifty people were overtaken by the slide and are either buried in the snow or scattered along the borders of the avalanche in a more or less injured condition.

The point at which the accident occurred is some five miles above Sheep Camp. The nearest telephone station is four miles distant. The telephone wires at this point were carried away by the slide. This fact makes it difficult to obtain further particulars at this time.

A blinding snow storm was raging all day upon the summit, and as a consequence many of those in the vicinity were making no attempt to travel. Sebarth, Sprague and Stevenson were traveling together as partners and were found side by side in bed.

Thousands of people were encamped in the vicinity of the accident at the time and were soon upon the scene rendering such assistance as possible. Upon receipt of the news points below Dyea telephoned up to know if assistance was required and received answer to the effect that 5,000 people were at work on the debris and were only in each other's way.

All day Saturday and Sunday a southerly storm with rain, wind and snow prevailed in this vicinity and it is believed the softening of the snow on the mountain side by those agencies was the cause of the avalanche. The quantity of snow and ice that came down in the slide is estimated at thousands of tons. It swept directly across the trail, which notwithstanding the fact that the weather was unsuitable for travel, was thronged with way-farers. The last vestige of the trail in the vicinity was wiped out of existence and where it lay is now a mountain of snow and ice, under which are many dead bodies that can not be recovered for days to come.

Later reports bring information that the bodies of three more unfortunate have been taken from the snow. One is that of Garrison, initials and residence unknown; Ritehie, initials and residence unknown; Durber, initial unknown, residence Seattle.

There was a preliminary slide at 5 o'clock in the morning. People were digging up their goods when the second slide occurred about noon.

Latest reports are that 31 bodies have been recovered.

SEATTLE, Wash., April 9.—Later advice from Skagway says that it is now believed that 50 or 100 people were killed in the slide. Twenty-two bodies have been recovered and identified and 25 were brought out alive.

GEN. LEE

Will Make Some Startling Disclosures Before the Senate Committee Regarding the Conspiracy to Blow Up the Maine.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—Representative Lorimer of Illinois, is authority for the statement that Gen. Lee will make some startling disclosures before the senate committee on foreign relations when he arrives here regarding the conspiracy to blow up the Maine. It was announced that Gen. Lee would be called before the committee, but the nature of the testimony expected from him was not disclosed. "I understand that Gen. Lee is to supply the missing link in the testimony," said he. "My information is that Capt. Sigsbee is in possession of the facts but does not feel at liberty to give them until the person who gave them to him releases him from the secrecy imposed. That person I understand is Gen. Lee."

It is said that the information Gen. Lee is expected to testify to relates to the extinguishment of the electric lights in Havana at the instant of the blowing up of the Maine. Electrical experts have said that if the light went out in Havana at the time of the explosion it would be conclusive evidence that the mine under the Maine must have been fired from a shore electrical connection. Capt. Sigsbee before the foreign relations committee said he had information that the lights had gone out but did not think it advisable to give the name of his informant while he was in Cuba. His informant is said to be Gen. Lee.

Queen Regent Preparing to Flee.

LONDON, April 9.—The Vienna correspondent of the Daily Telegraph says: The queen regent may soon return to her native land, Austria. Suitable preparations are already making at the palace of her brother, Archduke Luigen, for her reception.

Coal Mine Flooded.

NELSONVILLE, O., April 9.—The large mine of the Hocking Valley Coal Co. is flooded. Miners broke through into an old mine that was full of water. Three acres are covered to the depth of three feet, and 300 men are idle. Pumps have been ordered. The mine can not be drained on account of the dip.

Died on the Scaffold.

FOLSOM, Cal., April 9.—C. H. Raymond was hanged Friday for the murder of Fred Andrews, at Baden, San Mateo county, November 17, last. He died bravely.

DEMONSTRATION

In the Streets of Madrid in Favor of the Army and Against the Government.

Demonstrators Visit the Military Club and the Offices of the Liberal Newspapers—There Were Numerous Arrests.

MADRID, April 9.—The Puerta del Sol is now densely packed. A large body of police is drawn up near the Hotel de Paris, where the civil governor of Madrid is dining. Occasionally the cry "viva Espana," is raised and reechoed by a thousand voices. The correspondent of a press association saw one arrest. A respectable looking individual was brought to the hotel doorway, where he was asked to be loosed from physical custody, promising to accompany the police quietly.

Senor Aguilera, the civil governor, resumed his interrupted dinner. But fresh cries arose, and the burly, good-tempered governor rushed into the thickest of the mob, brandishing a stick, but hitting nobody.

Senor Aguilera is a man of gigantic proportions and the best loved individual in Madrid. The manifestants scuttled in all directions before his shield, producing a comic effect and reducing the disturbance to its true proportions. The police are acting admirably and the military are kept in reserve at the barracks in case of an emergency. Should there be more beneath the surface than appears, praise is due for the precautions taken.

At 11:10 p. m. demonstrations continued in favor of the army and against the government. The demonstrators have visited the Military club and the offices of the liberal newspapers. There have been numerous arrests and many of the demonstrators have been injured.

At 10:30 p. m. a large crowd was still gathered in front of the Puerto del Sol, crying "Long live Spain;" and "Long live the army." The civil governor of Madrid is among them, promenading up and down, begging them to disperse peacefully.

The crowd, relying on the kind-heartedness of the governor, whom the population of Madrid adores, refuses to disperse, and is bent on visiting the Military club to make a demonstration of sympathy. The authorities prohibit the formation of groups in front of the Military club, the presidency or the American legation. Gen. Castelviel was offered at the Military club a banner to head the demonstration; but he refused, alleging that the crowd was composed of the dregs of the city. Several of the ringleaders have been arrested, the civil governor threatening to call out the civic guards if the crowds do not disperse.

ARMISTICE MEANS NOTHING.

Gen. Correa, Spanish Minister of War, Lets the Cat Out of the Bag.

MADRID, April 9.—El Imparcial says that Lieut. Gen. Correa, minister of war, in a conversation Saturday with several people expressed himself as follows:

"It is an error to say that the government has granted an armistice to the rebels. I would never give that before leaving the ministry, because it would be the same thing as recognizing the belligerency of the rebels. The government has granted the wishes of the powers that we should cease hostilities during the day when Gen. Blanco judges prudent for preparing peace. I acceded to a cessation of hostilities, because to refuse the wishes of the powers would be to divorce Spain from the world. If I left the cabinet I should be placing my successor in an awkward position."

"Gen. Blanco will probably publish a proclamation of truce, and also another offering indulgent terms during the cessation of hostilities. If, during this period, there are important submissions and the United States withdraws its ships from the neighborhood of Cuba and the Philippines, all will be well and peace will soon be reached. Otherwise the Cuban war will continue, and the powers will be obliged to demand that the United States maintain absolute neutrality and enforce a dissolution of the filibustering committee in New York. The armistice is not to prevent the Spanish government continuing its military preparations, and placing the peninsula, the Canaries, the Belice islands and Puerto Rico in a state of defense."

THE GOVERNMENT

Gives the Dupont-De Mours Powder Co. a Large Contract.

WILMINGTON, Del., April 9.—The E. I. Dupont-De Mours Co., it is understood, has received from the United States government a contract for furnishing $15,000,000 worth of powder and the mills are being rushed to turn out the material as rapidly as possible. Most of the powder manufactured at the mills at present is red, and being more difficult to ignite than the black powder, there are fewer explosions, and it can be produced more rapidly by the machinery.

The company is building a new mill in the lower yard and also a machine for the manufacture of prismatic powder, which is to be the largest in the world. The wages of the company's employees recently have been increased.

NEWSPAPER MEN

Arrested While Taking Notes Near the Mayflower.

NEW YORK, April 9.—Extraordinary precautions were in force at the navy yard, Brooklyn, Saturday, respecting suspicious persons. The officer of the guard has been ordered to cause the arrest of any person seen taking notes and to allow no photographers to enter the yard. Three newspaper men were arrested Saturday while standing near the Mayflower, taking notes. They were taken to the captain of the yard, Somer, and then Adm. Bunker before being discharged.

LONDON PRESS

Comments on the Latest Phase of the Cuban Situation—The Armistice a Recognition of the Cuban Insurgents as Belligerents.

LONDON, April 9.—The Times commenting editorially Monday morning on the latest phase of the situation says:

"We can not doubt that had the Sagasta government taken this truly statesmanlike and patriotic action a little earlier it would have led to a solution honorable to Spain and satisfactory to America. Even now, despite the ominous tone of our New York correspondent, we find it hard to believe that so signal an advance on the part of Spain will not meet with some response from Washington."

"It is to be earnestly hoped that nothing in President McKinley's message will grate needlessly upon the feelings of Spain or enhance Senor Sagasta's difficulties."

The Daily Mail says:

"The armistice implies a recognition of the insurgents as belligerents and it is therefore a very notable step, if not too late."

The Daily Graphic thinks that unless the powers are convinced that the Cuban insurgents will accept an armistice and the United States is ready to give autonomy a fair trial, the proceedings are "more creditable to their hearts than to their heads."

CONSULS IN SPAIN.

Consul Has Been Given Them by the United States Government to Leave if They Desire.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—Permission has been given by the state department to the United States consuls in Spain to leave that country if they so desire pending the threatened severance of all diplomatic relations between Spain and this country. They have not been ordered to leave, as such case is not referred to except in the case of a rupture between the two nations, but they are permitted to exercise their own discretion in the matter. The effects of the consulates, such for instance as unimportant papers and furniture, will be turned over to the representatives of Spain.

"The Spanish government has authorized her consulars in Cuba to take charge of the effects of all United States consulates there it is presumed like authority will be given to English consular officers in Spain.

THE REMAINS

Of Miss Frances E. Willard Cremated and the Ashes Buried at Rosehill Cemetery.

CHICAGO, April 9.—The remains of Miss Frances E. Willard were cremated Saturday at Graceland cemetery. Although little if anything had been said in advance as to cremation of the remains of the celebrated president of the Women's Christian Temperance union, it is stated that such a procedure was in accordance with her repeatedly expressed wish.

Miss Anna Gordon, Mrs. L. M. Stevens, the new president of the W. C. T. U. and a few others were present.

The ashes were taken to Rosehill cemetery Sunday, where services were held. The ashes were then interred in the Willard family lot at Rosehill.

SHORT OF TUGS,

The United States Will Be in the Event of War With Spain.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 9.—Adm. Kirkland has detailed two navy officers to make a thorough examination of two of the best two-boats in the harbor, and if their report is favorable the two boats may go into commission as adherents to the Pacific coast squadron. In the event of war the navy on the Pacific coast will be short of tugs. They are needed at Mare Island and there would be plenty of work for them towing coal and ammunition to the men-of-war stationed in the harbor and to the batteries on the bay shores.

A Prominent New York Man Commits Suicide.

NEW YORK, April 9.—John G. Decker committed suicide in Rochelle Park, N. J., Sunday by shooting. He was for some years engaged in the manufacture of paper boxes in New York, but sold out a few months ago. Late he was under medical treatment for nervous prostration, and at times appeared to be depressed with the idea of coming to want, although he is believed to have been worth $50,000 and is known to have had a considerable bank account.

HAVANA Closely Guarded.

HAVANA, via Key West, April 9.—Havana is guarded more closely than ever, the Arolas battalion being posted around the limits of Vidano, the swell suburb of the city. Within the last two days a number of Cubans have been arrested and are now confined in the Cabanas fortress, charged with various offenses. Some say the prisoners have been engaged in a plot to assassinate United States Consul General Lee, and others assert that they have been acting as spies for the United States government.

The Fern is All Right.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—Navy department officials ridicule and discredit the widely circulated rumors that the Fern has been blown up. Lieut. Whittlesey, who would be the first to know of the receipt of any such news by the navy department, said that he had not heard of any trouble at Havana, and that while the Fern was at Havana he did not credit any other part of the story.

The West African mail steamship Dahlmann, which arrived at Liverpool from the west coast of Africa, March 22, and was outward bound, is ashore near Holyhead. The passengers and crew have been landed by rocket line and life boat.

A dispatch to the London Daily Telegraph from Gibraltar says that the Spanish cruisers Cristobal Colon and Infanta Maria Teresa have left Cadiz for a destination undivulged, with six battalions each a thousand strong. Additional troops the dispatch asserts, will leave Cadiz by the mail steamers during the next few days for Cuba.

AN ARMISTICE

Granted to the Insurgents Without Conditions, by the Spaniards.

AT A CABINET MEETING IT WAS

MANY AMERICANS

Are Leaving Cuba on Steamers From Havana and Other Points.

On Lee's Departure the British Ambassador Will Look After Americans' Interests—The Spanish Minister Prepared to Leave Washington Hurriedly.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—Preparations for all eventualities are being hurried to completion. Gen. Lee will leave Havana Saturday, probably on the small naval vessel Fern, now in Havana harbor, although it was said at the state department that he might take one of the plant line of steamers. At that time also the other United States consuls and most of the American citizens residing in Cuba, will be out of the island. Official reports received here Friday stated that large numbers of Americans were leaving on the several steamers from Havana and other ports. Entire quiet has prevailed there up to this time. The United States consul at Porto Rico is also preparing to leave. No instructions, it is stated definitely, have been sent to Minister Woodford concerning his withdrawal from Madrid, that being left to his discretion.

The prospects of his withdrawal have been fully considered, however, and there is reason to believe that in the event of his retirement the British ambassador at Madrid will look after American interests and afford protection to such Americans as remain in Spain. This, it is stated in an authoritative quarter, is part of a comity between the United States and Great Britain, and reciprocates the action of the United States government

THE MEMBERS

Of the Ways and Means Committee Considering the Drafting of a War Revenue Measure.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—The members of the ways and means committee of the house are busily engaged with the treasury officials in the work preliminary to the drafting of a war revenue measure to be introduced in congress immediately upon the opening of hostilities with Spain. An increase in the internal revenue tax on beer from $1 to $2 a barrel, and a large increase in the tax on manufactured tobacco, including cigars and cigarettes, has been practically agreed upon. Bank checks, bills of exchange, drafts, deeds, mortgages and other paper of this class, patent medicines and nostrums in all probability will also be added to the list.

A rough estimate of the receipts to be derived from these sources is that the increase on these articles alone will approximate if not exceed $100,000,000 a year. Beer it is thought, will produce an increase of $35,000,000; manufactured tobacco an increase of $35,000,000 or more, and commercial paper and patent medicines $32,000,000. Another source of revenue which it is said is almost certain to be availed of is transactions in railroad and other listed stocks. It is believed that the returns from this source will be large. In all the figuring so far, the remaining industries and the professions which were taxed for strictly war revenues during the rebellion have been left out of the account. An increase of from two to three cents on letter postage and a tax on gas and electric light has also been suggested to the department, but these items have not yet been considered. The increase of one cent an ounce on

THE AMBASSADORS

Of Five Great Powers Advise Spain to Give Extreme Concessions to the United States.

NEW YORK, April 11.—A dispatch to the world from Madrid says: The ambassadors of five great European powers—France, Russia, Italy, Germany and Austria—have diplomatically informed the government of Spain that war with the United States can only be avoided in their judgment by Spain yielding.

The ambassadors of Europe have advised extreme concessions to the United States. They appealed to Spain's pride, noble self-sacrifice and self-interest. They meant that she must abandon Cuba.

The ambassadors of the same powers called upon President McKinley in Washington, in the interests of peace as a matter of form. There was possibly no expectation, no hope, that the United States would receive one inch from its one vital demand—that Spain must give up Cuba.

But the powers may have felt that as they were about to use coercion in Madrid it would be diplomatic to make a demonstration in Washington at the same time.

There is reason to believe that the powers have made extraordinary propositions to Spain. They have said in effect that if she should make such concession to the United States as they believed to be necessary, the powers of Europe would guarantee her against war, both external and internal.

The powers would delegate to one of their own number, Austria, whose throne is closely allied to that of Spain by ties of blood, the duty of defending Spain against any internal foes that might arise, as a menace to the dynasty, as a result of yielding to the demands of the United States.

In plain English this means that Austrian troops would, if necessary, be sent to Spain to maintain order and to suppress civil war. The Austrian troops would have behind them the allied moral and physical forces of Europe.

The papal nuncio, who has been repeatedly to the palace in the last 24 hours, is believed to be in sympathy with this programme.

FAREWELL CRY

Of the Havana Crowd to Gen. Lee and the Americans as They Sailed From the Harbor Was: "Get Out, You Yankee Swine!"

KEY WEST, Fla., April 11.—As the Fern, with Gen. Lee and the Americans was leaving Havana harbor Saturday evening, the wharves and boats on both sides of the narrow entrance to the harbor were crowded with Spaniards, who hissed and jeered as each boat passed out. As the Fern rounded to, heading for the open sea, she passed near the Maine wreck. The group on deck had been laughing and talking expressing their satisfaction at leaving Havana. With one accord each man doffed his hat in salute of the brave dead, while silence fell on all the space of several minutes. Gen. Lee being on board the Fern made the boat a target for redoubled hisses, groans, cat calls and whistles from the crowds on shore. "Get out, Yankee swine," was one of the mildest expressions used. This seemed to strike every one on board as indigious. Vice Consul Springer, who had been on the island 50 years, waved his hand to a particularly abusive group, saying, in tones loud enough for all to hear, "Wait, wait, my friends, we shall all be back soon."

GEN. LEE

Arrives at Key West, Fla., and Leaves for Washington.

KEY WEST, Fla., April 11.—Consul General Lee arrived here on the Fern at 7:30 Sunday morning.

Gen. Lee came ashore about 11 o'clock and received an answer to a telegram he had sent to Washington. The general sailed for Tampa at noon. From that port he will go direct to Washington.

Lee's Message to Blanco.

Key West, Fla., April 11.—"You may tell Gen. Blanco for me that the Fern is the last ship of the American navy that will ever go out of Havana harbor while the Spanish flag flies over the Morro." This was the message that Gen. Lee sent to Gen. Blanco as he steamed out of Havana harbor Saturday night. Lee was indignant at the insults heaped upon his head by the Spanish officials and the populace. He had been snubbed at the palace by Gen. Blanco and affronted by Dr. Con-

Asiatic Squadron Ready.

LONDON, April 11.—The Hong Kong correspondent of the daily Mail, telegraphing Sunday, says: "The American squadron has completed arrangements for putting to sea. Two vessels have steam up ready to start at a moment's notice. The cruiser Baltimore and the revenue cutter Liugh McLachlan are expected Tuesday. The British steamers Nanshan and Zafiro have just been bought by America for transport purposes."

A Battle at Athbara.

CAIRO, Egypt, April 11.—The British brigade, in the defeat of the Dervishes Friday at Athbara, and the capture of Mahmud, the Dervish commander, and 4,000 of his followers, lost, in addition to the officers killed, cabled Friday, ten ranks and file killed and had 90 men wounded. The Egyptians lost 51 men killed and had 14 officers and 319 men wounded. The Dervishes lost about 2,000 men killed.

Execution on Good Friday.

SAVANNAH, Ga., April 9.—Bristow Graham (colored) was hanged in the grand jury returned an indictment against Lee Rose for marrying his niece, Ella Rose. Quite a sensation was created, as they belong to very prominent families. The bond was fixed at $1,000. The clerk who issued the license was also indicted.

Big Order for Blouses, Etc.

JEFFERSONVILLE, Ind., April 11.—An order for 60,000 blouses, besides a number of shirts, drawers, etc., has been received at the quartermaster's depot in this city. One hundred and fifty extra seamstresses have been employed.

letter postage probably would augment the receipts by $30,000,000 a year. A bill providing for a temporary loan of $100,000,000, and a permanent loan of from $300,000,000 to $500,000,000 at three per cent., payable in coin, has been prepared by the ways and means committee and will be immediately introduced in case of war. The whole question of the finances of the government in view of probable hostilities is being carefully considered by the treasury officials, so that a definite and well thought out plan of operation may be at the disposal of congress in case of need.

A MILLION MEN

Have Volunteered for the Expected War With Spain.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—Since the excitement began the war department has received nearly a million applications from men who wish to volunteer. Circular answers have been sent that the national guards will have first chance, and orders have been sent to commanders of national guard companies to assemble their men in the armories and give them formal notification that they will have preference if a call for volunteers shall be made by the president, and if they do not wish to enter the regular service, they will be considered exempt.

War and naval preparations are proceeding systematically, but the larger details of preparation have been shaped and there is little more to do than to see these regularly executed. While there are many naval movements, there has not yet been any decisive order affecting the movement of the fleets. All is in a state of expectancy in this regard. A report was current Friday that the Spanish fleet of cruisers had sailed from Cadiz for American waters. There was no confirmation of this, either at the Spanish legation or at the navy department, though it would not be improbable as the press dispatches from Madrid Thursday night stated that this formidable fleet was expected to sail Friday.

Will Report Favorably on the Odell Bill.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—The military affairs committee of the house Friday unanimously reported the Odell bill granting permission for the building of a Catholic chapel on the government reservation at West Point. The bill has been before the committee in various forms for two years.

Steamers Withdrawn From Service.

NEW YORK, April 9.—R. A. C. Smith, of the Ward Line Steamship Co., returned from Washington Friday. To a reporter he said that all the Ward line steamers were withdrawn from service Friday.

To Transport Jersey Troops.

NEW YORK, April 9.—An evening paper says that orders were issued at the Pennsylvania railroad station, Jersey City, Friday, that two special trains must be held in readiness on Monday afternoon next to transport New Jersey troops to the sea coast.

WOMAN'S WAY.

The train was behind time, and was running at a terrific rate of speed to make up, and had reached the bridge before it was discovered that the draw was open. There was no time to do anything but jump, and this is what the big engine did. It actually cleared the 28-foot draw and landed safely on the other side, the train going down through the opening. This is the biggest jump ever recorded by a locomotive, and the post office department officials think it will never be equaled.

"To this day no satisfactory explanation has ever been offered to account for the long jump of the locomotive, and it can only be said, in partial explanation, that the engine's momentum must have been so very great that it had, to a certain extent, overcome its own natural laws of the attraction of gravitation which held it to the earth and made it for the moment a free agent that did, until the speed was slackened, literally fly through space. How otherwise could it, without the least support, have passed through a greater space than its own length?"

"The feature of this remarkable accident has never been prominently brought out before by the railway mail service, as, despite the assertion of the superintendent of the rolling stock of the New York Central at the time, that the engine had made the unheard-of jump through the air of 28 feet, pulling the mail car after it, the postal authorities were slow to believe that a more satisfactory explanation, accounting for the presence of the engine on the other side of the draw would come to light, but it never has nor will."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

A LEADING QUESTION.

The Poughkeepsie student home on "furlough" paused and looked thoughtful for a moment.

"The sum total of table destruction during the year is appalling," he continued. "The Vassar farm comprises nearly 300 acres. The asparagus beds cover an acre of ground, and in the season yield from 75 to 85 bunches daily.
Thousands of bunches of celery are devoured by ethereal freshmen, sophomores, seniors and juniors every year; hundreds of bushels of tomatoes, onions and potatoes are required to keep pace with mental progress; and quantities of milk, eggs and bread that would make the delicate young lady of the bonbon-eating period of 30 years ago faint with horror are yearly consumed by these vivacious damsels who can read Latin and jump five-barred gates with equal facility. About 50 cows are owned by the college, and they supply the girls with about 100,000 quarts of milk annually. The Vassar girl is fond of an egg for her breakfast. That is why about 100,000 eggs disappear every year."

"If there is one thing more than Latin and Greek, and psychology and geometry, and trigonometry, that the Vassar girl likes, it is pancakes. The quantity of pancakes consumed at the college is enormous. The griddle is ten feet long and three feet wide. The Vassar pancake has a turn and a brown that are peculiarly its own. In spite of the girls' fondness for cakes, however, only about 2,000 are consumed at breakfast."

The President's Message.

The President's message was sent to Congress shortly after noon yesterday. The message did not receive the endorsement of a majority of the Senators, and Senator Foraker openly expressed his dissatisfaction. The message received slight applause from Republicans and none from Democrats. The spectators in the galleries made no demonstrations. The message was referred to the Foreign Relations Committee.

In the message the President asks Congress to authorize and empower him to take measures to secure a full and final termination of hostilities between the Government of Spain and the people of Cuba and to secure the establishment of a stable government, capable of maintaining order and observing its international obligations, insuring peace and tranquility and the security of its citizens as well as our own, and to use the military and naval forces of the United States as may be necessary for these purposes.

After recommending that the distribution of supplies be continued, the President closes:

"The issue is now with Congress. It is a solemn responsibility. I have exhausted every effort to relieve the intolerable condition of affairs which is at our doors. Prepared to execute every obligation imposed upon me by the Constitution and the law, I await your action."

He acknowledges the receipt of information of the proclamation of a suspension of hostilities on the part of Spain and says:

"If this measure attains a successful result, then our aspirations as a peace-loving people will be realized. If it fails it will be only another justification for our contemplated action."

The President argued against a recognition of belligerency or a recognition of independence as remedies. He reviews the Maine, but, as in the matter of Cuba, leaves all to Congress.

A Song Recital.

A JAMESTOWN (N. Y.) paper, in speaking of Miss Villa Whitney White, who will give a song recital Thursday night at the Methodist Church, says: "Miss White's voice, a mezzo soprano, is purely musical, though she has in reserve a virility which is amply capable of the interpretation of the intense passages of her songs. It is a voice of remarkable purity both in speaking and in song, and is under a schooling that keeps it free from fatigue through more than an hour and a half of continuous use. She was the recipient of much applause after each song. At the close of the program the audience applauded until Miss White sang the immortal Scotch folksong, Annie Laurie." The admission will be fifty cents.

Success—The Best Evidence.

To attain success in this life you must apply all your talents to the accomplishment of a single aim. "Jacks" of all trades seldom succeed at anything, while a man of moderate ability who devotes himself exclusively to one purpose is bound to succeed. Our aim is to excel all others in turning out fine laundry work, and we have been told by many that we have succeeded.

Our patrons are increasing daily and we regard this as the best evidence of our success. Once our customers always our customers. Here are a few of our inducements for you to be one: New neck bands on shirts free of charge; linen repaired; smooth ivory-like edges on collars and cuffs.

EASTER MUSIC IN PARIS CHURCHES.

THE newly organized vested choir of St. Peter's Episcopal Church sang well Sunday in rendering a program of Easter music. The choir is composed of good voices, well trained, and adds to the beauty and impressiveness of the service.

At the Catholic Church the choir sang a well selected program in creditable style.

The choir at the Christain Church rendered appropriate music and Mrs. Fanniebelle Sutherland sang a solo in her usual pleasing style.

Mrs. Chas Mehagen sang a beautiful solo in excellent voice, at the Methodist Church, and the choir rendered Easter selections.

The were no solos or special programs at the other churches.

THE Easter Egg Hunt, given by the ladies of the Episcopal church at Judge Purnell's residence on Saturday netted $11.90. Seven hundred colored eggs were hidden in the house and yard. Of the children over seven years, Willie Swearengen found the greatest number, fifty-three. John Stuart, Jr., was the most successful of the younger ones—finding fifty-two.

HON. LUCAS MOORE, Commissioner of Agriculture, has thoroughly investigated the result of recent frosts. He says the peach, cherry and pear crops of the State are completely killed and that all uncovered tobacco beds were ruined.

THE people of Paris and adjoining towns are fortunate in having an establishment in their midst that will compare favorably with anything in the larger cities. We were very much surprised at the large and varied lines J. T. Hinton has on exhibition, and can assure our readers that they can find anything they want in the house furnishing line right in his establishment. It is a waste of time and money to go away from home.

LAUGHLIN BROS., the popular butchers, are daily slaughtering some extra nice spring lambs, and a lot of very choice beefes are now being served their trade, as well as the tenderest veal that ever was offered in a Paris meat market. Laughlin Bros. keep dressed fowls of all kinds and can supply you on short notice. They have just arranged to keep fresh fish. Try their No. 1 salmon, black bass and Spanish mackerel. Laughlin Bros. will always give you the best in the market. (Saprtf)

A CASE OF LUCK.

BEING a detective of long experience and having made a specialty of serving men in the commercial line, I have many reminiscences that are more or less entertaining.

Opening my diary at random, I find notes on the case of Hubert Meredith. My first knowledge of the young man came to me through a letter from his father, Sir Hubert Meredith, a man with large landed possessions, a strong will of his own.

"I will give you some history of the boy," wrote the old gentleman, after we had some correspondence in which it was arranged that I was to employ my time and professional talents in looking for the son. I could imagine the elder Meredith, a self-willed, choleric gentleman, who was used to having his own way within the circle of his family and tenants. He frequently underlined his sentences and there was a vigor in his language that can only spring from a masterful spirit.

"Hubert was always rebellious and intractable," declared his father. "Being strong and athletic, and taking to the roughest boyish sports as naturally as a fish takes to water, his spirit of independence grew with his years, and he had no taste for the accomplishments desirable in a son of my house."

He would rather take a dive from the side of a cliff into the river, back a wild colt, or wrestle with some of the village boors, than to pursue his studies, though provided him with some of the best instructors that were turned out of Oxford, my own alma mater. I insisted upon his tutors disciplining him, and he knew a great deal more about the sensations that accompany a good caning than about Greek roots or the beauties that can be unfolded through a knowledge of the dead languages.

"But no amount of punishment seemed to tame his spirit or reconcile him to the task of being a gentleman. Had he not been an only son, and a very handsome one at that, I'm certain that I would have sent him to sea or found him some kind of subordinate service in India. While he was still a mere boy I reached a degree of desperation in which I decided that if he would only look like a gentleman I would try to be content. But I could not hire him to put on the appearance, the clothes or the airs that belonged to his class. In his hurry to reach the fresh air he would neglect all the essentials of the toilet, and by the time he returned from some boyish expedition he would look as though he had been rolling about under one of your modern street sweepers. My gentle wife used to remind me that the wildest colts sometimes made the best horses, but it made me angry, and I would say that if his future goodness were but a tithe of his present wildness, he would indeed be a paragon among men. He would at least be a premier."

"But the boy grew worse. He would climb where a goat would not venture. He would slide with flying hair and shouts of exultation from the roof-tree of the house, and depend upon the eve-trough to prevent his dashings to death. When there was a cold in the stable that was too wild and too vicious for the experienced men in charge to handle, Hubert would take him, and those who saw them say that the battles were like those with death. The punishment he received was accepted as a matter of course, and the boy slept the sleep of the just under a conviction that he had fairly and squarely paid for his fun."

"I regard it as a miracle that he grew to the age when we could decently pack him off to school. My decision to have this important step in his career taken, came in a characteristic way. We had the chief dawager of the whole section to dinner. In the midst of the meal there was a popping fire like that of musketry, the room was full of smoke, the dowager was in hysterics and the boy was like to die from laughing. He had packed the springs beneath her chair with fire crackers, attached a fuse, and cunningly lighted it from where he sat. That determined the whole matter. We sent him to school as soon as practicable, and also sent fair warning of the trouble that he was liable to make. I will omit the troubles that his instructors had with him."

"When Hubert came home with his handsome figure, his stylish clothes and his cheery laugh, I was delighted. No one was ever better to look upon. But the happy dream was cruelly dispelled. His aggressive and lawless nature had only taken another direction. I think if he had only been a liberal, I could have forgiven him. But he was a radical of the radicals. The first time that the political situation came under consideration at the table, he simply threw a firebrand into a powder mill. We elders were not only loyal adherents to the throne, but deprecated the idea that the middle or lower classes should have any voice in government. It was our duty to govern them, and theirs to be grateful for this constant solicitude for their interests. We renewed our pledges to the established church and prayed for those who sought salvation by any other route."

"Duke Selfton, who never did have any too much sense, had the indiscretion to appeal to Hubert. He straightway announced the most pernicious doctrines of republicanism. He did not at all agree with us. He believed that all men are born free and equal, that our tenants had just the same natural rights as ourselves, that a man's religion was a matter between his God and himself, and that a Methodist was just as liable to be saved as an Episcopalian. I will acknowledge that I never was more angry in my life. I had a narrow escape from a stroke. I did not measure my terms in condemning the heresies of my son, and when he left the table there was a general nod of approval from my guests.

"That fall I was induced to stand for parliament. The man against me posed as a man of the people. He had nothing in birth, character or ability with the nobility. He was a mere groundling, but a fluent talker and had a fiery way with him that appealed to the masses. He even corrupted my own tenants. But what is infinitely worse, he corrupted my own son. He took the stump. He outranted the ranting candidate. My only son, with my own name, told the people in a score of different ways that I was not in sympathy with their wants, that all my thoughts were remote from their aspirations and that I had no just claim upon their votes.

"I was beaten, and when Hubert came home I not only told him that he was disdained and that he was no son of mine, but that I never wanted to see his face again, and that it would be the aim of my remaining years to forget that I ever had a son. Then I struck him with my cane, and I have never been able to get rid of his look as he turned away, clutching his strong hands, but never offering to resent the blow. It was more than I could have done.

"That night he took his boat and rowed to the nearest seaport, after taking leave of his mother and sister. The best detective ability that I can employ on this side has only ascertained that he embarked for America. Investigation thus far has been conducted with a view to avoiding notoriety, and it is still my desire that my son be found without giving unpleasant publicity to the affair, if possible. But find him, no matter what course must be pursued. I am older and wiser than when he and I had our differences. I thought then that his ideas were revolutionary and subversive of good government. Reformatory changes, attended with salutary results, have altered my opinions. The boy was nearer right than I. Besides this, I have the strongest paternal longings for the boy. I want to die with a knowledge that he is worthy of his ancestry, and that his future is well provided for."

"As this communication is confidential, I will add that the young man left a sweetheart behind. They were affianced lovers and she has never ceased to regard the obligation as binding. She made the mistake of saying when they parted that she could never approve of him so long as he refused obedience to his father, and his pride has kept him silent toward her as toward the rest of us. She is an heiress, and would give all she possesses to have the former happy relationship restored. Do not spare expense and your success will remove all question as to the correctness of your bills."

No detective would want a pleasant commission, so far as terms were concerned, but it looked as though I had been asked to find the proverbial needle in the haystack. I had no idea that the scion of a noble house would retain his family name while roughing it in America. Figured with the general run of such rash adventurers, he had found his practical level in some humble employment and I was confronted with the appalling prospect of sizing up all the restaurant waiters, saloon attaches and that large class of nondescripts throughout the United States who live upon their wits and call their earnings easy money. No telling into what channels young Meredith had drifted. But I would not resort to advertising until I had exhausted all other resources. The old gentleman had sent me a photograph of the young fellow, taken ten years before, and the strong, attractive face, as I studied it, impressed me with a conviction that I should not look for him among the weak and unworthy.

I may be superstitious, and I may be right, but I have long had a pleasing idea that I was not dependent upon myself, but was guided in thought and action by some occult influence that must be sought for among the other mysteries of our existence. While I was thinking over this case in which there were such financial possibilities, I was called to the telephone and asked to see Mr. Whittier at my earliest convenience. He is a wholesale jeweler, and a man of large means, so I made it convenient to go to him at once. He had been robbed of some precious stones and other valuables. The thief was an employee, for there had been no burglary and no one had reported the losses until they came to the notice of a foreman in one of the departments. Enough had been learned to know that imitation jewels had been substituted in some of the work sent out, and there was a double loss, for these counterfeits must be made good.

Whittier did not know whom to suspect. He would gladly have pocketed the loss and dropped the matter, could he have been assured that the robbery would not be repeated. In going over the list of those in the department where the loss had occurred we found the name of a young Englishman who had gone to work for Hubert & Co., the largest wholesale coal firm in the city. He seemed to be a man of varied accomplishments, for he had shipped from a lapidary to a bookkeeper. Such a range of knowledge tends in itself to create suspicion, and I concluded to begin on the young Englishman.

When I went to the office my man was not in but I met Herbert. He was a magnificent specimen and I could not but admire the evidence of strength pervading his entire person. He impressed me as a giant in mind and body, and his bearded face appeared familiar to me. His whole manner invited frankness and I told him, without reserve, what I was there for. He sat for a full minute without saying a word, apparently weighing some important matter in his mind.

"I'll tell you," he began abruptly, "you're on the wrong scent. The young man you're after wouldn't steal a fortune if he knew the theft would never be discovered. I knew him in England, although he has no knowledge of the fact. He was bred right, he has lived right, and you couldn't force him into dishonorable action. Look somewhere else for your thief."

"You knew him in England?" I said, while it came to me that, with his beard off, Herbert, the successful man of business, would be the Herbert Meredith whose picture lay in my desk. "Yes. But I do not care to go into that beyond what I have said in the way of vindicating him. He is trying to make his way, single-handed, just as I have done, and I purpose helping him. If you bring him into any trouble, let me know at once. What ever money can do for him will be provided immediately. He is a younger son and has been wild, but he is above suspicion, and there are associations that make his interests very dear to me. He has it in him to grow, and I'm not going to have his career spoiled. I have employed him with a fixed purpose of advancing him as rapidly as I can he done without arousing his suspicion that he is being patronized."

"You say that you are a self-made man?"

"In your best American sense of the term. I landed here without enough money to pay a week's board. What do you think was my first engagement? Supe in a theater. Yes, sir, it was that or starve, for I'm as set against going wrong as the young man you came here looking for. Shortly I became conductor on a street car, but a collision threw me out of the job. I must live, and soon found myself a coal heaver. There was a strike while we were unloading one vessel, and I asserted my right to work, as I felt it necessary to eat. There were a few others who took the same stand, and that made us 'seeds.' In the inevitable row that followed I must have displayed a good deal of prowess, for the captain and owner expressed a great admiration for me. The latter was pleased to say that I was evidently meant for something better than a roustabout, and it was his own suggestion that he would trust me for a cargo of coal, if I'd start a little yard and account for proceeds to him. I accepted, and that was the foundation of the present business. He is the 'Co.'"

I can dispose of my jewelry easily by saying that I found the thief in the foreman, who is still doing time. I did not pretend to Mr. Hubert that I knew him, but cabled my information to his titled father and told him to bombard the coal merchant with the right kind of letters. The old gentleman was wise and evidently knew the blood with which he had to deal. His letter was heart-breaking in its humility and its pleading for a return of his boy. He could never die content till they were together and reconciled.

And there was another letter. It was the outpouring of a woman's love, a yearning to see him, the story of how she had searched and longed for him, faithful through all the years of their separation.

I made it convenient to be at Hubert's office about the time he opened this mail. His face paled and his hands trembled as he read, but his husky voice and the soft look in his eyes told me more than anything he could say. "I'm suddenly called to England," he informed me. It is imperative. I'm going to leave the business in charge of the young Englishman, and I want him to consult you every day until he masters this thing. The man in the yards knows all detail, and is to be depended upon, but I want you to see that the sharks don't get young Chester. He has yet to learn the ways of your shrewd Yankee dealers."

"I guessed as much," laughed Hubert, when I started at the name of Chester. "I began to suspect you were after me, and no one is more delighted at your success. It was largely a matter of stubborn pride. Yes, that's Chester, her brother. He's all right in the grain. I've cabled her to get her trousseau ready, and told the good old pater to kill the fattest calf. As soon as we touch at Liverpool I'll be Hubert Meredith again, but I'll retain an interest in this business here, because it will be a constant reminder of the possibilities open to a man in this glorious country of yours."

There were great delights when the young man returned home. The tenantry were out in full force, caucous boomed, hourfries blazed, speeches were made, and I learned through a letter to young Chester that the old gentleman danced every set. A little later came the wedding. For my simple part in the affair I was constantly talked of among those foreign blue bloods, as the greatest living detective, to say nothing of the munificent fee sent me. It was a clear case of luck, and genius often gets the credit that belongs to luck.—Book-Keeper.

She Wanted Her Alcohol Full Strength.

"Speakin' of b'ilin' things," remarked Deacon Puffer to the throng in the village store, "reminds me of my wife. Some time ago she sez tu me, sez she: Josiah, ef th' exertion won't be tu much fur ye, I'd be bleeged ef yer would fetch me 'bout a pint of alcohol. An, Josiah," sez she, "I want it strong."

"What she wanted it fur I pears I've furgottin' neow, but when I fetched it tu um she smelled of it several times an' sez she: It du beat the world, Josiah, how these pesky critters du 'dulterate things nowadays. Why, sez she, 'if this hain't more'n half water, then my Christian name hain't Malvina.' Well, gentlemen," said the deacon, uncrossing his legs and then crossing them again, "Malvina bein' Mrs. Puffer's Christian name, as ye all be knownin', it warn't fur me to dispute, an' I woudn't th' best thing fur tu be done was fur me tu take th' stuff back an' suggest that what was wanted was pure stuff, or none 'tall. An' then her 'em' send worse stuff than afore," remarked Malvina. "No, Josiah," sez she, "them critters be past redeemin'. Leave it tu me, Josiah."

"I left it tu Malvina, gentlemen," explained the deacon, after helping himself to a bit of cheese and a cracker, "an' out I goes tu du my chores. I spos'e I was at 'em fur 'bout five or six minutes when all of a sudden I heard th' durdest explosion an' th' tallest yellin' from th' kithen, where I left Malvina, that's ev' been heard tell of. I runs in there, an' what ye spos'e I find?

"Durn my buttons," chuckled the deacon, before anyone could reply, "ef I didn't discover Malvina flat on her back by th' stove, which was busted all tu thunder, with her eyebrows all gone, an' no more hair on her head hardly than ye'd find on a baby's. 'Bury me from th' meetin' house, Josiah,' sez she, as I bent over her, 'an' don't low Hannah Perkins in th' door, fur I done fur.' But she warn't done fur, an' when I'd convinced her of that fact, an' she hed not been called as yet, she up an' told me all 'bout it."

"It 'pears, gentlemen," continued the deacon, "that Malvina hed decided tu strengthen their alcohol, an' she concluded that tu du th' she'd better b'lieve it deown. She put it in a b'iler, slapped it on the stove, an' then goes 'bout her work. Th' stove was party hot, an' afore Malvina hed done more'n tu or three things, an' hed jes started tu look to see how that b'ilin' process was a-comin' on, th' durn thing blew up. Malvina never seed much 'bout it, more'n tu tell me how it happened, an' if she's hed alcohol in th' house sence I ain't heerd of it."—Washington Star.

FOOD AND DRINK IN ONE.

Wide Extent to Which the Use of Pulque Has Grown in Mexico.

According to tradition the discovery and use of pulque in Mexico dates from the eleventh century. A Toltec chief, named Tepeulatzin, one day received a cup of strange drink sent by one of his noblemen, named Papantzin, at the hand of the nobleman's beautiful daughter, who was called Xochitl, or the "Flower of Tula." The great chieftain was delighted with the new drink and charmed with the maiden, whom he won as his wife. A son born to them ascended the throne of the Toltec nation, which caused internal dissensions among the people, and finally led to the downfall of the Toltec tribe. But from that time on pulque has retained first place among Mexicans of all tribes and ages, and is now more largely used than ever.

Pulque is both a food and a drink, and among the poor it forms a very important addition to the frijoles, tortillas and chile, making up their limited fare. In employing a Mexican servant, a few cents a day for the purchase of pulque is generally allowed by the mistress of the house. A Mexican can do with little clothing and scant fare, but life is a thirst-panged desert if the usual allowance of pulque is interfered with. It possesses large medicinal properties, acting in a beneficial way upon the digestion, blood, nerves and system in general; but if used to excess, it finally dulls the intellect and makes one drowsy and stupid.

One hundred thousand quarts a day is the average consumption of pulque in the City of Mexico alone, and special trains are regularly employed in the carrying trade between the maguey plantations and the city markets. It is vendied through the streets by loud-hung peddlers, who go about shouting their trade into the open doors and patios of the houses; the most is sold, however, from the multitude of pulquerias, which open their inviting doors upon nearly every corner for the patronage of the thirsty, where it retails at a centavo for a large glass, and by the gallon sells at eight cents. The pulquerias are gaudily decorated little shops with large names, some of them bearing such impressive emblems as El Triunfo de Napoleon and Los Dias Ultimos de Pompeii.—Godey's Magazine.

EARLY SPRING CARE.

Success in the Hen Business depends on Details in Feeding, Watering and Supervision.

The passing seasons increase my belief that to get eggs it makes far less difference whether you have Leghorns or Brahmans, or what special brand of animal meal you feed, than whether you look after the details in feeding, watering and supervision. When the hens cannot scratch for exercise or worms because of snow or frozen ground, they must then have animal food and an artificial incentive to scratch. Cut bone is the cream of animal food and if you can get it pays the largest possible interest on any output. Hens can stand more scratching in other directions and still pour out eggs, with plenty of bones. If this is impossible, kiln-dried meals will be better than nothing. Feed it liberally.

A PAIR OF HIGH-BRED FOWLS.

The second care is oyster shells or whatever you use for shell material. The amount that a flock of hens will eat seems almost incredible, but they know best; your only lookout is to see that the boxes are never empty. A dull, mopy hen rarely lays. More probably she eats and grows fat, and still doesn't lay. Scratching pens are desirable, but everybody cannot afford them. An excellent substitute is made by throwing down a bushel of hayseed every few days on the floor of the common pen. The hens go for it at once and with a vim. It absorbs moisture, gives exercise and sweetens the atmosphere wonderfully. On a farm there is plenty of waste hayseed on the barn floor. Feeding is not among the lesser things of poultry keeping, yet the feeding, its kind and regularity, is worth care and study. A warm mash in the morning of a three part meal, corn, oat and fine feed (mixed at the dealers), stirred up with small potatoes and animal meal, or a condition powder. Oats at noon and wheat at night, except now and then a corn supper for a change. Water should be clean and warm when necessary and ever present. Be regular as to your feeding hours and do not forget to feed them. Eternal vigilance from the day-old chick to the stewpan is the one thing needful to make hens lay.—Annie L. Rogers, in Farm and Home.

EGGS FOR HATCHING.

Get Rid of All Males Now and Procure "New Blood" for Next Spring and Summer.

While it is proper to keep the breeds separate during those periods of the year when the eggs are to be used for hatching, it is a saving of time, labor and fencing to let them out on the fields together until spring comes. It is the impression on the part of some that when birds of different breeds are allowed together the purity of the flock will be impaired; but if the breeds are separated a month before the eggs are used there will be no evidence of impurity in the chicks hatched. Where one has two or three breeds it is somewhat difficult to keep them separate without confining them in yards, and as so doing more work becomes necessary, it is not advisable to separate them a day longer than the last egg for hatching is taken. There is a safeguard, however, should doubt be entertained in regard to retaining the purity of the breeds, and that is to get rid of all males now and procure "new blood" next spring. It is not necessary to have the males with the hens, as they will lay as many eggs without the males as when they are present with the flock.—Farm and Fireside.

HELPFUL FARM NOTES.

Do not keep too many hens in a flock. Always use a good thermometer when churning.

One advantage in the creamery is that the farmer's wife gets rid of the drudgery of making butter.

One serious objection to selling hay from the farm is that it carries away too much of the fertility of the farm.

To make the most out of it, plan to save all of the liquid manure as well as the solid by using plenty of bedding.

Agricultural papers help to build the farmer up by being alive to his interests, and every farmer can find profit in reading them.

While theoretically budded trees are the best, yet, practically, there are just as good trees growing by root grafting as by budding.

It is only when good care has been taken to maintain the fertility of the farm that it can in any way be considered advisable to plant young trees where a very old one has died.

The soil for the orchard should be dry, firm, mellow and fertile. Generally a soil that will produce a good crop of corn or wheat will grow good trees and fruit. It should be worked into a good condition before planting.—Farmers' Union.

TREATMENT OF PIGS.

At Eight or Nine Months of Age They Should be in Good Shape for the Market.

All the pigs may be treated alike until they are five or six months old, because no matter for what purpose they are intended, the first work in the preparation for that purpose is to build up the frame, to develop the bone and muscle, says Texas Stock and Farm Journal. Whenever the weather permits the sows and pigs should have free and wide range over all the farm not devoted to cultivation, and pasture should be looked upon as essential to their development. If the pasture is good the amount of rooting they will do will not be a damage to the range or the farm, for they will destroy many insect pests and the exercise will be a benefit to the animals. A patch of peas should be grown on every farm for the young pigs as well as for other purposes, and the pigs should run in them an hour or so every day. The peas have much the same nutritive qualities as milk and are cheaper. When the pigs have them in sufficient quantity their frames have a rapid development and they can be brought on to the corn feeding later with less risk of injury than if they had passed through the summer on grass or alfalfa alone. But wherever in Texas the alfalfa can be grown, and in many portions of the state it will thrive well, it ought to form a most important part in building up the frames of the young animals. After they become five or six months old those that are to be kept as breeders should be separated from the animals that are to be fed for market. The methods of handling the former should not be materially changed, and such changes as are made in feeding the fattening animals should be made gradually and cautiously, watching them until they have been brought to full feed. At no time is it well to confine them solely to corn. Some green stuff should be given them, and some variety of food, with plenty of charcoal and salt, abundance of pure water, and they should have clean, well-sheltered quarters. Corn, of course, will be the principal food in finishing, but it should never be given so freely and exclusively as to cause the hogs to become in the least tired of it. And at eight or nine months of age they should be ready for the market.

VALUE OF ARTICHOKEs.

This Writer Considers One Acre of Them to Be Equal in Value to Six of Corn.

Artichokes are not given the attention they deserve; there is no crop on the farm that will give as great returns. They are drought proof and a certain preventive of hog cholera. One acre will feed 30 shoats five or six months, as 500 to 800 bushels per acre is a common yield, while on rich soil 1,000 bushels are frequently produced. As millet producers, fed to cows, the artichoke stands without a peer, and the tops make excellent feed for horses. They also make excellent pickles and salad when properly prepared, and without are excellent fertilizers and easily grown.

Prepare the ground by plowing deep and pulverizing the lumps; mark the rows as for potatoes, four feet wide; cut to one eye and drop 14 inches apart in row; cover about three to four inches; cultivate same as corn or potatoes. Plant from 1st to 15th of May. It is not necessary to dig them for legs, as they will do their own harvesting, and freezing does not hurt them. Do not store in the cellar, but put in pits and cover with a layer of straw and four or five inches of earth.

I consider one acre of artichokes worth six acres of corn: try them next season, if only a small patch.—R. T. Patterson, in Agricultural Epitomist.

GROUND PLAN FOR BARN.

Suitable for Places Where a Small Dairy Is Kept, and Some Horses and Sheep.

The accompanying ground plan of general barn is suitable for many localities where a small dairy of cows is kept, enough horses to operate a small farm and a flock of sheep. The stalls called Gran-O. It is a delicious, appetizing, nourishing food drink to take the place of coffee. Sold by all grocers and liked by all who have used it, because when properly prepared it tastes like the finest coffee but is free from all its injurious properties. Gran-O aids digestion and strengthens the nerves. It is not a stimulant but a health builder, and children as well as adults, can drink it with great benefit. Costs about  $\frac{1}{2}$  as much as coffee. 15 and 25c.

PLAN FOR GENERAL BARN.

for the horses must be five feet wide and for the cows four. The barn can be made any size desired. It will hold all the feed necessary, including roots and ensilage. A room in one corner is set aside for tools. The hay bay extends from the floor to the roof. Hay fodder and sheaf oats are stored in the room above the animals.—Orange Judd Farmer.

POLISH FOR OLD LEATHER.

Take two parts of good glue and soak in tepid water until it is thoroughly softened, then add five gills of water and two gills of brandy or common spirits, rubbing it until it becomes smooth; stir this into the mass, and afterward stir in two parts of wheat flour mixed in cold water. The mixture is then put over a moderate fire and allowed to steam off a little, but not to boil, stirring it well while over the fire. It can be used immediately, or made up into small cakes which can be dissolved at any time in a little water or beer. It can be put on with a brush, a thin coat only being required, and afterward rubbing it with a linen or silk cloth. It will restore old dash boards of leather, or leather tops, where the enamel is not off.—Western Plowman.

INFLAMMATORY RHEUMATISM.

From St. Lawrence Plaindealer, Canton, N. Y.

To suffer for years with a prevailing painful ailment, which baffled skillful medical treatment, yet which was cured by a simple household remedy, is the lot which Mrs. George L. Rogers, of West Main Street, Canton, N. Y.

"Thirteen years ago," said Mrs. Rogers to reporter, "I was attacked with influenza, rheumatism and a complication of diseases. You can judge somewhat of what I endured, when you look at these hands. They were distorted, twisted and swollen. My foot, too, is so much out of shape that the big toe lays across the others, the end

"Not withstanding," she said in explanation, "it's allus been done that a-way, he said."

"By why?" I persisted.

"So's to worship God accordin' to our own consciences, as the constitution provides."

"But sitting on opposite sides of the church doesn't make any difference, does it?"

"Don't it?" he replied with emphasis. "Well, hit jis' do. Do you reckon that a man kin set over there alongside my big wife where she kinudge him with her elbow about every onct in two minutes? He begins to swaz—I say, kin a man do that under them circumstances and worship God accordin' to his own conscience? Well, not much, nowhar' am' perticular not in this here needs my vood."

"The explanation and the supporting argument carried conviction beyond all controversy, and I had no more to say in opposition."—Washington Star.

A Remarkable Book.

A Comic History of Greece, from the Earliest Times to the Death of Alexander the Great. By Charles M. Snyder. Philadelphia: J. B. Lippincott Company.

The author of this work has set himself the task of making a truly serious set of classics accessible to young people. He has unquestionably succeeded as he expresses.

I wrote the book for the purpose of getting even with the myths and heroes of antiquity who caused us such anguish in school days. The Comic History of Greece is witty and humorous, without being vulgar. About 150 illustrations illuminate the lines from the pen of a half dozen artists. The book is a truly tickle tonic for the melancholy.

"Mother, come here quick, there goes Jane Albright in that everlasting calico dress of hers. I declare, I should think she'd be tired of wearing it. This is the fifth year if it's a day. I never did see such a careful woman with her clothes."

"It ain't the care she takes of it, Mandy, child, it's the gods. Then's William Simpson & Son's prints, the same as my old black and white which is almost as good now as the day I bought it, nigh four year ago come Easter. I was at the store with Jane when she bought that dress, Mandy, and so far as I can see the colors is just as bright to-day as they was then, tho' she's wore it constant ever since. It proves old Joes, what keeps the store, was tellin' truth when he says that the name of 'William Simpson & Sons' on the ticket to a package of calker or prints was a certain sure guarantee of gettin' your money's worth, for I never seen such colors keep bright and last so long."

FINALLY HEART TROUBLE.

Restored to Health by Dr. Miles' Nervine.

MR. EDWARD HARDY, the jolly manager of Sheppard Co.'s great store at Braceville, Ill., writes: "I had never been sick a day in my life until in 1890. I got so bad with nervous prostration that I had to give up and commence to doctor. I tried our local physicians and one in Joliet, but none gave me any relief and I thought I was going to die. I became despondent and suffered untold agony. I could not eat, sleep nor rest, and it seemed as if I could not exist. At the end of six months I was reduced to but a shadow of myself, and at last my heart became affected and I was truly miserable. I took six or eight bottles of Dr. Miles' Nervine. Houses and Lands For Sale or Rent. Opp. Court-house, up-stairs over Louisville Store.

IMPERIAL PEKIN DUCK EGGS FOR SALE

I can now fill orders for eggs of the above variety of ducks. The eggs are from carefully selected, high-class water fowls—as fine selections as can be found anywhere. I have been unable to supply the numerous orders for single fowls, pairs, and trios. I have no more for sale at present, but can supply the eggs at prices quoted below. Pekin Ducks grow quicker and command a reader sale than any other kind of poultry. They are large and have a beautiful white plumage. Require but little water, in fact, need it only for drinking purposes. They have many good qualities—cannot fly or climb fences, easily kept in with low fences. Feathers almost equal to geese. Drakes sell at $1.50 to $3.00.

Eggs, $1.50 per 13; $2.75 per 26.

Bruce Miller, Lock-Box X, Paris, Ky.

"IRONING MADE EASY"

This starch is prepared on scientific principles by men who have had years of practical experience in fancy laundering. It restores old linen and summer dresses to their natural whiteness and imparts a beautiful and lasting finish. It is the only starch manufactured that is perfectly harmless, containing neither arsenic, alum or any other substance injurious to linen and can be used even for a baby powder.

For sale by all wholesale and retail grocers.

Mrs. LAURA WEISHAUF.

Of Murry, Ind., Recommends Wright's Celery Capsules.

Murry, Ind., Sept 17, 1896.

THE WRIGHT MEDICAL CO., Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR SIRS:—Last spring I purchased a box of Wright's Celery Capsules from L. C. Davenport, druggist, Bluffton, Ind., and used them to stomach trouble with which I had been afflicted for more than 15 years. Since taking your capsules I have lost all trace of pain and my stomach is entirely well. I can eat anything and can truthfully say that I have not felt better in years.

Yours Respectfully,

MRS. LAURA WEISHAUF.

Sold by W. T. Brooks at 50c. and $1.00 per box. Send address on postal to the Wright Med. Co., Columbus, Ohio, for trial size, free.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is the great kidney remedy fulfill'd every wish in giving pain in the kidneys, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes the desire to urinate frequently. It compels to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and the extraordinary effect of swamp-root is soon realized. It stands in great request for its wonderful cures in the most distressing cases. It is a medicine by druggists, price fifty cents and one dollar. You may have a sample bottle and pamphlet sent by mail, upon receipt of three postage stamps, to the address on the bottle. Mention The Page News (Ky.) News and send your address to Dr. Kilmer &amp; Co., Binghampton, N. Y. The proprietors of this paper guarantee the genuineness of this offer. (2isp-1mo)

Optician Landman has been visiting this city regularly for over five years, and has adjusted glasses to the eyes of the best people of Paris and Bourbon County, and has proven himself competent, thorough, reliable and honest.

You can get Landman's glasses from Clark &amp; Clay's drug store, between his visits, and when he makes his regular visit he will examine your eyes thoroughly and make any change necessary to give satisfaction. Examination free.
